

Drugs 101

By Katie Tarrant

Tuesday evening, parents, clergy, and teachers from the Eugene community gathered in the Marist cafeteria to attend a presentation on the topic of teen drug use.

The event, "Drugs 101: What Parents Need to Know", was presented by Serenity Lane representatives in conjunction with The National Catholic Council on Addictions.

Participants engaged in a variety of interactive presentations, including the unique "The Teenager's Bedroom" presentation, focused on educating parents and teachers on how to recognize the warning signs of drug use, and how to confront this difficult issue with their teenaged children and students.

House Essay

Seniors in Andrew Oldham's AP Literature and Composition classes imagined themselves as houses for the annually dreaded essays they presented Tuesday.

The essays act as metaphors to describe each student's life in terms of a house. The students were encouraged to discuss any faults the house may have and what materials have been used in it.

"[The essay] fits well with first quarter and helps students think who they are in terms of self-knowledge," said Oldham. He continued to say that it helps "seniors think in broader terms of who they are as people."

During his summer, freshman Ryan Helbling backpacked the Sierra Nevada with sophomore Joe Laver and junior Lucas Mirabella. The trip was a trek of 34 miles over six days and Helbling packed 35 pounds of equipment and food for the journey. Alpine Glow, a reflection of the sun on the mountains, was Helbling's favorite experience. Imagine looking at that!

Seniors dominate Homecoming Week with victories in dance and karaoke competitions

By Joe Laver

Students enjoyed an eventful week filled with class activities including various dress-up days, trivia bowl, tug-of-war, karaoke and class dances.

The week began with Superhero Day on Monday and Safari Day on Tuesday. Students from each class tested their knowledge in the trivia bowl on Tuesday, and in the final round it came down to the sophomores versus the seniors with the seniors ultimately reigning victorious. The juniors and freshmen took 3rd and 4th place, respectively.

Students twinned and tripled up for dress-up Wednesday. During lunch the seniors decisively won the annual tug-of-war competition-because no one else showed up.

Thursday students got decked out for decade day by dressing up for each class' decade: the 1950s for the freshmen, 1960s for the sophomores, 1970s for the juniors, and 1980s for the seniors.

Before the class dances took place, groups from each grade performed in a karaoke competition. The senior class brought in the win with a rendition of the song, "Hey Ya!" by Outkast followed closely in second by the juniors.

In preparation for the class dances each grade has been practicing in various locations around campus. The classes performed routines to songs from their respective eras and the seniors took the victory, securing a sweep.

This week, backyard foliage was transformed into fashion designs by some crafty sophomores for theology teacher Heidi Susec's Hebrew Scripture class.

Students were given ten different project options for the assignment, but the artsiest of the choices was to create clothing from all-natural materials, without using cloth or thread, like Adam and Eve in Genesis 3.

Sophomores Gwen Over, Karson Silver, Jacob Kiefer and Lindsey Lee used leaves, grass, sticks, and a pumpkin to create a scarf, purse, headband, and bracelet. "That was the first time I've ever done something like that," said Silver.
